

Cannon maintains mission readiness

Exercise keeps responses sharp

PHOTO BY AIRMAN 1ST CLASS RANDI FLAUGH

PHOTO BY AIRMAN 1ST CLASS RANDI FLAUGH

Above: Senior Airman Lisa Gavin (front) and Staff Sgt. Tammy Kerr, both 27th Logistics Readiness Squadron, keep a look out while conducting convoy training with the New Mexico Army National Guard Wednesday as part of the Phase II exercise.

Left: Senior Airman Joseph Hanson and Airman 1st Class Nathaniel Amey, both 27th Equipment Maintenance Squadron attach a loader head to the replenisher table Tuesday at the “Bomb dump.” They are preparing to load 20 MM ammunition.

PHOTO BY AIRMAN ERIK CARDENAS

PHOTO BY AIRMAN 1ST CLASS RANDI FLAUGH

PHOTO BY TECH. SGT. SCOTT MACKAY

Senior Airmen Steven Stout and Tyler Johnson help their wingman, Staff Sgt. David Hill, walk after an exercise inject said he “broke” his leg in Bldg. 2328. These 27th Communications Squadron Airmen were participating in the Phase II readiness exercise Tuesday.

PHOTO BY STAFF SGT. APRIL WICKES

Above: A 27th Communications Squadron Airman dons his gear for Mission Oriented Protective Posture (MOPP) level four. MOPP 4 consists of the Battle Dress Overgarment (BDO), protective boots, a gas mask and protective gloves. The inner layer of the BDO is charcoal-impregnated to protect against chemical and biological agents.

Left: An Airman with the 27th Equipment Maintenance Squadron uses a forklift to move a pallet of inert MK-82, 500 lb., bombs from a flat-bed truck at the munitions assembly pad.

Senior Airman Brian Ducette, 27th Equipment Maintenance Squadron, installs a Fuze Munition Unit 139 into a MK-84, 2,000 lb., bomb at the munitions assembly pad on Tuesday for the Phase II readiness exer-